

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

I believe the direction we should be taking with regard to DSL is to make the cable and satellite companies abide by the rules the telcos use requiring allowing alternate ISPs

Current FCC rules keep bells from acting strategically and creating a walled garden around there DSL network, like the cable companies are allowed to do.

A sensible use of airways is to provide bands for free use in each area of the spectrum to allow for innovation rather than an unninovative cough 3G (2.5G or 2G) dumb cell phone carrier - kindof like the 1.2GHz band, but with carrier detect

More details can be found in Lessig's

Sincerely,

Kevin Brown
2286 Eastway Rd
Decatur, GA 30033